Our City Comment & discussion

by THOMAS D.
WATSON

Dangerous Weapons in Young Hands
Mean Tragedy
Impending

LESSON should be gained by parents
through the shooting of Edward N. Radke, Jr., six-year-old son of Ed N. Radke, by a boy companion.

The promiscuous use of small caliber rifles or air-guns by young boys should not be allowed by parents.
This seems to be an age for shifting the responsibility of children's upbringing to others.
The tendency is a point in favor of a civic center for Glendale. If we had community playgrounds
the play could be organized and under the supervision of an instructor who would be capable of accepting this responsibility.

It looks to us as if now would be a good time to start a movement to secure the old high school grounds for a civic center.
At the rate the new high school buildings are being erected they undoubtedly will be ready for occupancy in September. We understand the grammar schools are planning on using the old high school plant for this coming school year, but this need not stand in the way of starting the movement, for if the city purchases the site it could rent it to the schools, just the same as could the high school trustees.

The more we study this proposition, the better it looks to us. In our editorial of April 3 we suggested that the city buy the high school plant and turn it into a civic center for both business and recreation purposes. Move the present city offices to the administration building and sell the present city hall. The proceeds of sale would go a long way toward financing
the high school.

THE money derived through the sale to the city of the high school plant could be used in establishing a junior high school on the grounds recently purchased by the city school system. This site is located in the northwest section of Glendale and as the surrounding territory is building up very rapidly, some provision to take care of the educational needs must be made.

THE price the school authorities are willing to sell the high school plant for is not known, but as it belongs to the citizens, suitable arrangements could undoubtedly be made. Since Eagle Rock has voted to go out of the union high school district, the plan can be more easily carried out.

IN a nutshell, by the suggested plan Glendale would gain a city hall of sufficient size to take care of the growing needs, a civic center and a junior high school, all without cost to the taxpayer.

The editorial was well received and the movement is only awaiting some organization to give it a boost. Which will it be?

SOUTH GLENDALDE held a celebration in honor of the turning on of the ornamental lights which have been recently installed on San Fernando boulevard between Pacific avenue and Los Feliz road.

There were approximately 5000 people present at the exercises. It proved to be a fitting tribute to the accomplishments of a small band of our south end citizens. The San Fernando Boulevard association, headed by Lloyd H. Wilson, its president, through unbounded enthusiasm for its district and backed by untiring energy, has been able to make a veritable white way out of a section of San Fernando boulevard.

The importance to Glendale of San Fernando road, which is the gateway to the great San Fernando valley, has been demonstrated by the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association and a movement is now on foot to widen the road throughout the entire length in Glendale, and if this is done, the ornamental lights will probably be installed at the same time.

NATIONAL GUARDS DEFEAT ALL STARS

The Association All-Stars substituted for the Valve in Head team which forfeited the game with the National Guards at the Wilson Ball Park yesterday afternoon on non-appearance. The score was 9-10-1.

A good game was played by the Guards who outclassed the visiting team from the start. A big treat was given to the local fans when Bunch Westman, called the "Babe Bunch" of Glendale, started the game off with a roar by hitting a home run, which was followed by another by Stewart McMillan in the third inning. Wes Aggesson and Charlie Wendt twirled the ball in fine style for Glendale while F.
Bacon grabbed them behind the plate.

MRS. BRALY IS HONORED BY FRIENDS

Beautiful Flowers Massed
About Casket at Her
Late Residence

Represents University As
Only Freshman at Redlands

Again has Paul Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hutchinson, distinguished himself as an orator.
Last week at Redlands in a contest in which the representatives of seven universities of Southern California competed, he was given second place. He represented the University of California, Southern Branch, and was the only freshman entered. The other schools represented were the universities of Redlands, Pomona, Whittier, Occidental, U. S. C., Cal Tech.

Paul received a beautiful silver medal, his theme having been "The Dawn of the Age." The winner of the gold medal was the boy who won first in the high school championship of Southern California a year before Paul captured it while a student in Glendale high.

Never has Glendale seen more beautiful flowers than those which surrounded the casket of Mary Gridley Braly, beloved wife of John Hyde Braly, when friends looked their last upon the form
they had loved. From many places they came, for her friends were wide. Pasadena, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and many from Glendale, including the tributes from organizations of which she and Mr. Braly had been members.

A beautiful floral wreath in red, white and blue, indicating the wheeled design of the emblem of the Revolution, came from the Richard Gridley Chapter, The Glen Eyre Chapter of the Eastern Star club, of which Mrs. Braly had been president in 1910-11, was represented in the beautiful basket of spring flowers, but there were many pillows and other pieces of great loveliness from individual donors.

In conformity with Mrs. Braly's own wish and plan, the services which were held at the Braly residence at Brand and Milford Street
Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, were very simple. There were no musical numbers and no formal sermon. They were conducted by Rev. S. T. Montgomery of Los Angeles, a leader in the Anti-Slavery League, whose work has been of such interest to Mr. and Mrs. Braly.

He began with a reading from the scriptures of the familiar psalm
"The Lord is My Shepherd," followed by the admonition of Jesus to His disciples, beginning: "Let not your hearts be troubled."

This was followed by the reading of a very beautiful tribute to Mrs. Braly written by Mrs. Gertrude Follansbee and read by her at the White Breakfast of the General Richard Gridley Chapter two years ago when it was held at La Ramada. Mrs. Braly was then in falling health and Mrs. Follansbee was made the spokeswoman of the chapter to voice the affection in which it held its regent and the inspiration she had been to it. It seemed peculiarly fitting that it should be read at this service when so many sorrowing members of the organization were present.

Before beginning what he had to say as the personal friend of Mrs.
Braly, Mr. Montgomery stated that he was the bearer of a message of the deepest sympathy from the City Club of Los Angeles, of which Mrs. Braly is a member and whose affection for her, Mr. Braly had often expressed. Of his own personal acquaintance he said in part: "I think it was in 1911 I first came to know Mrs. Braly well. She was not Mrs. Braly then. We were both at a resort with a group of friends for about a month and I learned to know and appreciate her, and I am proud that in all these years I have been counted as one of her friends. When I was asked a few months ago if I would take part in this service, I felt it a distinct honor, because of the character and worth of the woman, and there comes into my mind an expression of my Lord and her Lord: "He is not dead, but liveth."
She is not dead but liveth. The house in which she dwelt has decayed and she has gone from it to another dwelling place.

"She lived in the body and served her day and generation. In the decay of the body there was pain and suffering and separation, but her soul liveth now in that other house, that mansion not made with hands.

"Hers was a beautiful life. Little by little during the month referred to I learned of the things she had accomplished, that she had taken part in during the years that were past. I came into touch with a mind ever fresh and vibrating, a life interested in life, in nature, in folks. She loved people. She loved to do things because her very heart promoted to that which would make others happier. She was a student of The Word. Often when we were sitting together with others I was asked to read this and other psalms. We went sometimes into the study of Job and his wonderful poems, to that which into the study of the teaching of Christ as revealed in the new testament and in every part I found her well versed. She had meditated.
She loved the scriptures and because of that she loved people.

"She realized that the people for whom Christ died were the most precious of the valuable things God has placed on the earth.

"So, in coming here this afternoon it is with the consciousness that we stand together mourning
the departure of one who has made a difference in the lives of many.

WHITE WAY OF SAN FERNANDO ROAD IS GREETED BY 5,000

Rockets Burst, Band Plays, and Pandemonium Breaks Loose As Highway Flashes Into Light From New Standards on the Artery of Travel

Automobile Parade Opens Festivities
First Unit of Glendale's Girdle of Night Lights Is Greeted With Addresses and Prophecies of Its Rapid Extension

By CORINNE ORFF

With rockets bursting in the air and the band playing
"The Star Spangled Banner," the order of Mayor Spencer
Robinson for the lighting of the new standards on San Fernando road, between Pacific avenue and Los Feliz road, was carried out at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night, April 28, 1923. Pandemonium then broke loose among the 5000 or more people who were present at the celebration of the completion of what will undoubtedly prove to be the first unit of Glendale's "Great White Way," as people along the remaining portion of this main traffic highway are already contemplating taking steps for the installation of these beautiful two-light standards.
Cheers, yells, applause and the toot-ing of the means horns were a few of the means of voicing their approval.
The celebration began at 7:30 o'clock when an automobile parade, headed by Mayor Robinson, left San Fernando and Windsor roads, going east on Windsor to Brand,
north to Lexington, and winding around through the main business district. There were about fifty automobiles participating, some very uniquely decorated. The miniature of the Green Hill Beverage company's plant attracted considerable attention.

Immediately upon the return of the parade Secretary C. Griffin of the San Fernando Road Improvement Association, called on several city officials and others to take their place on the platform. Lloyd Wilson, president of the association, then introduced the following:
Mayor Robinson, the singing mayor of Glendale; Wm. Twining, publicity manager of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, who will put Glendale on the map; Peter Dederich, superintendent of lights, who has been instrumental in installing and putting in these lights;
City Manager Reeves, Councilman Davis, H. L. Leavitt, manager of the Glendale Merchants' Exposition; Roy Johnston and Mr. Cobb, who were members of the light committee; Wm. Griffin, former president of the San Fernando Improvement Association at the time of the new light standards was started, and Charles Griffin, secretary of the association.

In his talk Mayor Robinson congratulated the people of south Glendale for the wonderful progress which has been made. He said that Jack D. Maise, 1249 South Central, and Lowell Carson of Reseda, were piloting machine that came together on Brand and Acacia at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. No one was injured.

Considerable tin was bent when cars driven by Edwin Mason, 508
East Lomita and Harold J. Record of Los Angeles, came together on San Fernando road at 11 o'clock
Sunday morning. No one was hurt.

Madeline Mae Montgomery,
319 1/2 East Acacia street, was piloting a machine that collided with a car operated by Harry Venable of Los Angeles, the accident taking place at Brand and Acacia at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. No one
was injured.

DADS' AND SONS' BANQUET TO BE HELD

Promises to Be the Biggest Affair of Its Kind

The father and son banquet to be given Tuesday night at the Christian church promises to be the biggest affair of its kind held in Glendale, according to W. F. Tower, general chairman in charge. More reservations have been made than for any of the previous father and sons banquets. The members of the Glendale Kiwanis club are planning to meet at the Hooper Service station on East Broadway and go to the Strickland home to bring the boys from that place over for the banquet. They will act as fathers to these boys and will have a special table at the banquet.

The program was arranged with the following:

Call to order, by David Black, chairman of the I. M. C. A. board of directors.

Invocation by Arlin McCormick, member of the Hi-Y.

Community singing, led by Sam Sutherland, who led the singing last year, and was yell leader at Occidental college.

Merle Waterman, boys' secretary at Long Beach, who is very versatile at the piano, will give a pianologue.

Introduction of the speaker of the evening, Dr. George P. Taubman, by Rev. C. A. Cole. Dr. Taubman is pastor of the Christian church at Long Beach and teacher of the largest Bible class in the world.

Introduction by David Black of the toastmaster, Theodore Haig, president of the Glendale Hi-Y.

Toasts—"Our Dads," Jack Swearingin, representing the Y. M. C. A. Notchers club; "1922 Summer Camp," by Leroy Topp of the Hi-Y; "What a Son Expects From His Father," Neal Sooy; "Bringing Up Dad," by Paul Cunningham of the Hi-Y; "Team Work Between Father and Son," by H. L. Butterfield, coach of Glendale high school.

Chong Kong of Fullerton Junior college and who was graduated last year from Honolulu high school, will play the steel guitar.

AUXILIARY CLEARS $54 ON CANDY SALE

EAGLE ROCK, April 30.—About $54 was cleared by the American Legion Auxiliary at the candy sale held in the "mystic circle" Friday and Saturday evenings. This money will be used for the purchase of the May dance which will take place in the Woman's Clubhouse next Saturday night.

Friday night all the candy which had been prepared was completely sold out, so the Legion Auxiliary members had to busy themselves Saturday morning to make more sweets for the sale. About $29 was netted from the first sale. On Saturday morning the young ladies in charge of the booth participated in a strenuous house to house canvass, and solicited orders for the candy then in the making. By four o'clock every bag of sweets that the auxiliary members had made for the Saturday evening sale was spoken for.

No decision has been made yet as to which one of the girls will be crowned queen at the dance, owing to the fact that a slight controversy arose over whether or not the girls who had the least votes could transfer them to their best friends, and thus help them to win. Announcement will be made after the Maypole dance tomorrow of the decision.

The dance itself promises to be one of the best attended affairs ever held by the Auxiliary. The Culver City Orchestra, a splendid aggregation of lively musicians, will present the latest and most harmonious dance numbers, and throughout the evening home made punch will be served.

MRS. OVERTON ENTERTAINS NAVAJO NEEDLEWORK CLUB

Mrs. Frank Overton entertained with a dinner party at her home, 439 West Oak Street, Saturday evening, members of the Navajo Needlework Club and their husbands. A little Maypole centered the smartly appointed table, the streamers in pastel colors leading to the guest places, at each of which was a little May basket.

The dinner was followed by cards, the prize winners being Mrs. E. O. Carlisle and Mr. L. O. Carlisle.

Guests were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. D. Root, J. C. Waite, S. A. Kootz, M. C. Fuller, E. O. Carlisle, Marl Carlisle, L. O. Carlisle.

FRENCH CLASS TO START THIRD TERM

The university extension class in French, which is being taught by Mrs. Ethel W. Bailey, will start its third term Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the high school in bungalow 300. It meets Tuesday and Thursday evenings and there will be no charge for visitors.

HIGH SCHOOL BOARD TO CHOOSE OFFICERS

Members of the high school board of trustees will meet Saturday to choose officers, appoint committees and organize their work for the coming year.

SURPRISE COMING IN K. C. MEETING

The Knights of Columbus has a surprise for the meeting Wednesday evening. All members are urged to be present.

MINNESOTA BOASTS PERFECTSCHOOLGIRL

Miss Amelia Scherfberg.

Miss Amelia Scherfberg, St. Paul, Minn., winner of the state competition for scholarly excellence, never was late, absent or had a grade below 95 in eleven years.

CAVANAUGH PLANS FOR ORCHESTRA OF GLENDALE WOMEN

Howard E. Cavanaugh is undertaking the formation of a ladies' orchestra in Glendale, of which he will personally be the director until such time when it may be expedient to make other arrangements.

All ladies who may be interested in such an organization are requested to communicate with Miss Dorothy Watson, in care of the Glendale Press or with Mr. Cavanaugh at the Cavanaugh Studios, 130 North Orange, phone Glendale 1727-J.

There is desired violins, viola, cello, double bass, clarinet, flute, saxophone, drum, piano, harp, oboe, cornet, trumpet.

The ultimate aim is to bring the status of the work to such a standard that the organization may be called a ladies' symphony. There is sufficient good talent in Glendale for such an orchestra and now is the time to go ahead with the formation. If you do not play an instrument, you may perhaps know someone who does.

Mrs. Braly Is Honored By Her Friends

Our lives sadder because of her going, but conscious also that we and not she, are the losers. She has gone into the fullness of life. She has left an example for us to follow. Our faith in Him will lead us as steadfastly as it led her in the ways of righteousness.

"Mrs. Braly was not only a student of the word of God, she was a lover of poetry, a lover of history, a student along many lines. Her mind was busy and active until the very last even though she suffered in body."

The prayer which Mr. Montgomery closed the service was a thanksgiving for the privilege vouchsafed him and all with whom she came in contact, of knowing Mrs. Braly, a prayer for her daughter, Mrs. Kirk, a prayer for Mrs. Braly and the great movements he has helped to foster.

The casket which was completely covered with Cecil Brunner roses, was opened that friends might once more look upon the face of Mrs. Braly and was then taken to Forest Lawn Memorial Park for interment in the tomb which Mrs. Braly had ordered prepared for herself two years ago. There was no lengthy service, just a benediction as it was committed to its last resting place, the pall bearers being C. D. Lusby, Frank Echols, W. E. Evans, Daniel Campbell, Calvin Whitely and S. C. Leppel, man, the Jewel City Undertaking company having charge.

GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB EXECUTIVES MEET TODAY

A meeting of the executive board of the Glendale Music club will be held today to perfect arrangements for the Friday night meeting of the club. Also, plans will be perfected for a benefit which is to be given for Miss Hazel Linkogel before she leaves for Chicago to study at the Chicago College of Music under Leopold Auer, considered by many good judges to be the finest violinist in the world.

Great White Way of San Fernando Road Opening Celebrated

of the people of the district who are working for the widening of San Fernando road and also pointed out the need for a park.

Wm. Twining of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce said: "As representative of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce I do not know of any subject that can be taken up by the advertising and publicity committee of that organization that will be more beneficial to the city than to boost this community, which has grown until it is the wonder of Glendale and of Los Angeles. South Glendale has grown faster than any other portion of the city and it is due largely to the hustle of the people and members of the San Fernando Road Improvement Association. Less than a year ago you had weed fields and today you have magnificent buildings and the best lighted boulevard in Glendale right here along San Fernando road."

"This is the Gateway. Anyone coming from Los Angeles or from the north must pass through some portion of this section. In the booklet which the Glendale Chamber of Commerce is preparing we will give you a real write-up. We are putting on a campaign to advertise all parts of Glendale. There has been an arrangement made whereby 60% of every dollar paid in membership to the Chamber of Commerce will go towards advertising this city, which will be a big thing. If Glendale is properly promoted many of the thousands of people who are pouring into Southern California every month will come here and the Gateway district will benefit accordingly."

The program concluded with the community singing of "Auld Lang Syne" led by Mayor Robinson. Dancing was then the order of the evening. The Ira Gay Orchestra, which furnished music between the various speeches, also furnished the dance music at Griffin's public market.

Low Wilson states that during the evening about 1500 doughnuts and 30 gallons of coffee were served to the crowd at the public market. For a while the committee in charge was overwhelmed by the big crowd, but later everyone was taken care of nicely.

With the thousands of motor cars passing over San Fernando road daily this first step towards making this street "The Great White Way" of Glendale will do much towards advertising the entire city, and will be the source of much pride of residents of all sections.

CITY ACTORS TO REPEAT FUN REVUE

The people of Glendale are to have the opportunity to witness the "Fun Revue," which was put on recently by the Community Players for the benefit of the American Legion building fund, at the high school auditorium on Thursday night of this week. This musical comedy will be presented under the auspices of Glendale Community Service and admission will be free.

POLICE AND FIRE MEN'S BENEFIT SMOKER

The members of the Glendale Police and Firemen's Relief Association will hold a smoker Thursday evening, May 3, at the fire station at 311 East Broadway, from 8 o'clock until 12. An invitation has also been extended to the city councilmen and City Manager Reeves to be present. There will be a musical program and refreshments.

FIREMEN GO TO SEE WHAT FISH SWIM

Ralph Dodsworth and Dean Williams of the Glendale fire department and Jack Wagon of the public service department left this morning for Big Bear Lake where they will spend several days on a fishin' trip.

Young Briefless had finished the defense on his first case, a mighty hopeless one. His client had stolen the hams and they had been found in his bureau drawer. Lawyer Briefless, tears streaming from his eyes, wound up his final speech for the defense with these passionate words:

"Gentlemen, out in the country, many miles from here, there stands a rose-embowered cottage. An aged couple dwell therein with their only daughter, a frail anaemic girl. The greybeard holds an evening paper in his trembling hand. The white-haired woman at his side weeps. The girl wipes her moist lips furiously. That a thin, transparent hand, that pathetic group, gentlemen, waits with bated breath for your verdict. Acquit the accused and they will be transported to the seventh heaven. Convict him and despair will overwhelm them. For, gentlemen—need I say it?—the old man is my father, the dear old lady is my mother, and the frail girl weeping by the fire is my adoring only sister."

Miss Betty Brown, the prettiest girl in the village, was blest with a father who snubbed all the young men who came to see her. One evening a beautiful young man named Samuel Green, called.

After the trio had sat together in silence for some time, the young man ventured to remark:

"It looks as though it might rain, sir."

"It's not going to rain," was Betty Brown's reply.

For nearly half an hour there was complete silence. Finally the old man's curiosity got the better of him.

"Who are you?" he growled.

"Samuel Green," was the response.

"What? Not old Tim Green's son?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, then," exclaimed the father, thawing, "it may rain, it may rain."

The members of the Pacific Avenue Parent-Teacher Association will hold a food sale at Gregg's hardware store on Wednesday, May 2, beginning at 10 a. m.

"When will we three meet again?" seems to be about the topic of conversation here. These three prize baseball packages, for which two baseball clubs paid an aggregate of approximately a quarter of a million dollars, are now fighting for their places in the sun under the handicap of an over-supply of well-meant publicity. They met when the Giants and White Sox were playing their spring series. Will all three of them be sitting pretty and smiling broadly when September fades into October? Let's hope so.

Last Performance Equals
Success of Friday Night

A very artistic performance was that put on by the Drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon club Saturday night at the club house when the three one-act plays presented the evening before were repeated, the orchestra of the high school under the student director, Ivan Dow, providing the musical interludes between acts. A special treat in this connection was the playing of Wagner's "Evening Star," with Ivan Dow as cornet soloist.

It would be hard to say which of the so different plays was most enjoyed, the audience manifesting its sincere appreciation in no uncertain manner after each presentation.

At the conclusion of the performance when Mrs. R. E. Chase, curator of the section and director of the plays, was called before the curtain to receive floral tributes and applause, she called to the platform Ivan Dow and Harold Jones, the orchestra's business manager, and presented a check to them from the section in grateful appreciation of the work of the organization to be applied on the fund to purchase a kettle drum which they desire to buy. This was gratefully acknowledged by Mr. Dow.

Following the concert the cast was delightfully entertained by Mrs. Daniel Campbell with a supper in the tea room of the club house where guests were able to express more fully their appreciation of the work of the talented artists of the evening.

At this writing Mrs. Chase has no idea how much the section has made out of its two performances but she believes enough to pay for the balance due on the beautiful stage curtain which the section purchased as its contribution to the club house.

MRS. A. G. SMITH ENTERTAINS AT HER RESIDENCE ON ELK

At her home at 126 East Elk, Mrs. A. G. Smith entertained delightfully Saturday afternoon with a "500" party, followed by a luncheon served in the dining room at a beautifully appointed table, catered with a gold bowl filled with spring flowers, purple iris, baby's breath and Cecil Brunner roses.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Marvin Smith and Miss Eugenia Connor from Chicago. Mrs. Frank Arnold captured first prize and the consolation favor went to Mrs. Lloyd Jones of Long Beach. Other guests who enjoyed Mrs. Smith's hospitality were: Mesdames P. P. Noche, Albert Gafford, Edwin D. Hamlin, D. W. Hepburn, C. G. Logan, W. B. Kelly, J. E. Walker, Miss Jessie Connor, Miss Marie Samuels of Los Angeles, Miss Veda Cooper, formerly of Tucson, Ariz.; Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. Archie Zimmerman of San Gabriel, Mrs. William Johnson of Caspar, Wyo.; Mrs. Jack Lawrence of San Diego.

MRS. MONTGOMERY IS WORKING ON CARNIVAL

Some unusually clever booths have been planned for the Carnival of Months to be held May 5 at the Tuesday Afternoon club, under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Montgomery and the non-section members. The committee states that there will be something to delight every minute. A big card party is planned for the afternoon and in the evening there will be an unusually fine Scotch program given, with a harp soloist and other features. Pictures of the club house will be on sale.

NAVAJO NEEDLEWORK CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Members of the Navajo Needlework club were charmingly entertained Thursday at luncheon followed by an "afternoon of needle work," by Mrs. F. A. Koontz at her home, 471 Vine street. Pink roses were used in decoration and the ladies present were: Mesdames Leslie O. Carlisle, Mark Carlisle, E. O. Carlisle, M. C. Fuller, J. C. Waite, J. D. Root and Frank Overton.

WILSON AVE. NEEDLECRAFT CLUB HAS MEETING

The Wilson Avenue Needlecraft club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. F. Stahl. The afternoon was spent with needle work, also guessing contest, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The rooms were beautifully decorated with roses. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. L. H. Beck, 432 West Wilson avenue.

MAIDS AND MATRONS TO MEET TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The members of the Maids and Matrons section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. Julian Hayward is curator, will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the tea room of the club house, with Mrs. George Postle and Miss Scott as hostesses. There will be an important business meeting and musical program.

J. O. C. CLASS TO MEET TOMORROW EVENING

The J. O. C. class of the First Methodist church will meet tomorrow night in the social hall for an important business session. There will be an unusual social time. It is desired that every member be present. The meeting will start at 7:30.

HIGH SOCIETY IS GLENDALE PREVIEW

"High Society," Hunt Stromberg's first five part comedy special for the Metro, with the entire company in attendance, will be the big feature tonight at the Glendale theater.

The graphic hunting picture, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson "Trailing African Wild Animals," will be the special bill for the day. It is bigger and better than a circus. For comedy, Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, in "Twin Husbands," will be the offering. The De Havens have numerous friends in Glendale who may be expected to attend the production tonight.

ALPHA DELPHIAN CHAPTER HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The Alpha Delphian Chapter of Glendale held its regular monthly meeting at the public library Friday morning with Mrs. W. F. Nash presiding. Minutes were read by Mrs. E. A. Bode, secretary. There were eighteen members present, who enjoyed an interesting program on "Social Life of Rome," which was presented by members of the Ivy group, with Mrs. V. Rapp as leader. The program included the following: "Roman Family," by Miss Martha Cox; "Apparel and Food," Mrs. J. E. Sargent; "Schools and Education, Books and Libraries," Mrs. H. W. Sawyer; "Amusements," Mrs. V. Rapp; "Business and Trade," Mrs. Bertha Dodds; "The Army," Mrs. H. C. Wilcox; "Burial Customs," Mrs. V. Rapp; "General Outline of the Romans," Miss O. Wing. The next chapter meeting will be held Thursday, May 23, at 10 o'clock, at the library. Mrs. Charles Marshall as leader of the Lotus group, will have charge of the program.

AUCTION BRIDGE IS ENTERTAINED BY MRS. ROGERS

The Auction Bridge club was entertained with its customary luncheon and afternoon at cards on Wednesday of last week at the home of Mrs. Forest Rogers on North Kenwood. Those playing were Mesdames John Moore, Don Ald Baxter, Prince Davis, Miss Anne Morgan, Mesdames Harry Powers, Albert Draper, Thomas Meddick, Ernest East, Gerald Blue, Darwin Chesney, William McPherson, Eloise Bondeaux, Charles Meadows, James Everington, and Claud Putnam, who substituted for Mrs. Blue.

The first prize was won by Mrs. Moore and the second trophy by Mrs. Davis.

USONA QUARTET AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH MAY 4

Among the attractions of the coming week is an entertainment to be given Friday evening, May 4, at Central Christian church by the Usona Male Quartet, assisted by Prof. Stillwell Moore, prominent Burbank educator, at the piano. Vern Isom, violinist, one of the members of the quartet, has been heard in Glendale frequently and his rare talents are well known. The three soloists are also prominent in their line. An entertainment of rare merit is promised. No charge for admission.

JUNIOR COTILLION HAS REGULAR MEETING

The regular monthly party of the Junior Cotillion was held Saturday evening in the banquet hall of the chamber of commerce with Mesdames R. L. McCourt, W. S. Ingram and J. H. Seales serving as patronesses and hostesses. The usual number, about 40, were present and punch was served throughout the evening.

At the next party, which will be held June 2, the Junior Cotillion and Junior Assembly groups will unite and the party will be given in the ballroom of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

LITERARY SECTION TO MEET ON TUESDAY

The members of the literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club of which Mrs. J. E. Sargent is curator, will meet at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Ayars, 315 North Orange street. The program will be in charge of Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, who will give a talk on her trip to Europe last summer. Mrs. Streith-Miller will give a group of spring songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Gertrude Cleophas, and will also sing "Ava Maria," with violin obligato by Lalla Sage.

MRS. RICHARDSON IS HOSTESS FOR G. A. R. BENEFIT FUND

Mrs. Agnes Richardson of 135 North Howard street was hostess at a social evening at her home Friday, for the benefit of the permanent fund of the G. A. R. of California-Nevada department. At the close of the evening refreshments were served to the Sons and Daughters of Veterans who were present.

REED FURNITURE MAKES HIT WITH GLENDALE FOLKS

A most remarkable display of reed furniture can be seen in the showroom of the Glendale Quality Craft company, manufacturers of reed furniture, 402 North Brand. There are beautiful combinations for porch and library, artistic bookcases and piano lamps.

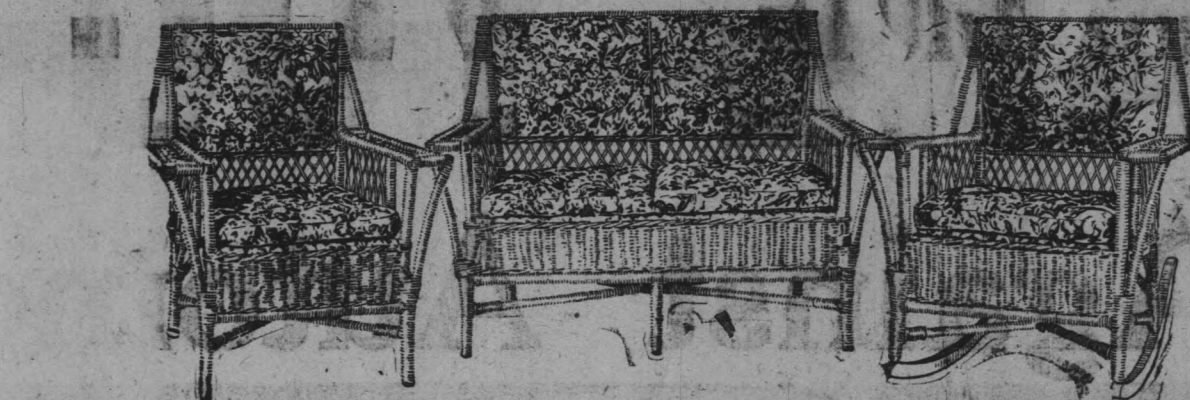

"Since opening business a short time ago we have had many orders for our reed furniture and hundreds of people have remarked on the beauty of design and rigid construction of Quality Craft reed furniture," said Manager Lyon this morning. "We are in business in Glendale to stay and it is our aim to please the public and we can do this only by producing quality furniture at reasonable prices. This we are doing, and although we have been here but a short time our business is on the increase and there are good prospects for the future."

To look at John Daly Murphy, who has an important role in "You Can't Fool Your Wife," which will be the feature at the T. D. & L. theatre tomorrow, a George Melford Paramount picture, one would hardly take him for Julian Eltinge or Karyl Norman, the Creole fashion plate, yet some of the first named comedian's biggest hits were old women parts played in the Lambs' Gambols.

In only one of these, called "Bleaty Bleaty," did he appear for the general public. However, then-trogers are familiar with his work in the leading comedy part in "The Old Lady from Newark," with Mrs. Fliske in "Erstwhile Susan," in Belasco's "Dark Rosaleen," in "The Nightcap," one of the hits of the 1921-22 season, and in "It's a Boy" of the season 1922-23.

Among the screen stars to whose productions Mr. Murphy has added gayety and mirth are Betty Blythe, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Theda Bara, Nance O'Neill and Ethel Clayton. He has the role of a "gay old dog" in "You Can't Fool Your Wife," a Paramount production which features Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi, Lewis Stone and Pauline Garon.

CLASS TEAMS IN AN INTERESTING BALL GAME

A game of baseball in which no little skill was shown and in which good-natured fun predominated throughout was played Saturday on the High School grounds between teams from Dr. Logan's class of young men and the Loyal Men's Class, both of Central Christian Church Bible School. The youngsters challenged the men and evidently expected to take them into camp by a handsome margin. But they failed to reckon on the pitching ability of one Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the church, teacher of the men's class and a former college athlete, who was the star heavier for his class team, something like 20 years ago. That he still retains some of his cunning twists and curves will be testified to by his opponents. He pitched a steady game for six of the seven innings played, allowing very few hits and striking out many. G. S. Adamson pitched the seventh inning.

For the youngsters Carroll Thompson, W. Enoch and Gordon Mize did the heaving, Thompson serving for the first four innings, Enoch the next two and Mize the last.

H. E. Cox umpired a very satisfactory game. He was a little off on balls and strikes, but evened up things pretty well, so there was no kicking, except in fun.

NEWS OF EAGLE ROCK

'MARCELLO' IS TOO SUGGESTIVE FOR STREET NAME

Eagle Rock Residents on Mariposa Street Select Own Name

No beauty parlor street names for Eagle Rock residents! When it was discovered that a movement was on foot to re-name Mariposa street, Marcello, an uproar arose among the persons living on that street. They were all in favor of retaining the musical name Mariposa, but realized the inadvisability of doing so, owing to the fact that Los Angeles has a Mariposa street, also. So interested residents held a conference, and after consulting a Spanish dictionary, two prospective names of more favorable sound and significance were selected, and a petition sent to the re-naming committee. The names chosen are Mariguita, which translated means lady bug, and Maravella, signifying admiration. About two-thirds of the Eagle Rock streets will draw new names, because of duplicates in Los Angeles. Whether or not the remainder of the population affected by this re-naming will take exception to the names chosen for their place of abode is a source of interest to those in charge of the work.

PROSPECTUS OF C. OF C. SENT OUT

A prospectus of the Reorganized and Expanded Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce is to be sent out tomorrow to Eagle Rock residents. This sets forth definitely the aims, ideals, purposes and plans of the organization, and solicits the co-operation of all the citizens in the district.

This prospectus designates the new Eagle Rock chamber of commerce as "Our New Civic Champion." It will call together the representative citizens of the district, make plans for water, sanitation, schools, street improvement and repair, fire protection, police protection, building inspection and regulation, zoning, etc., and will bring the views of the Eagle Rock people with respect to these subjects persistently before the right officials or public bodies to secure prompt and satisfactory action. Furthermore, the new chamber will promote proper commercial development of the section and will serve to make Eagle Rock in all respects an ideal home land. This is a part of the information supplied in the prospectus. Further data concerning actual working funds, and the campaign now in progress is given. The charter members are all listed so that prospective members can see just what business men have already pledged their faith and finance in the new organization.

GERMAN BRASS

THIEVES ARE ACTIVE
[By Associated Press]
BERLIN, April 30.—Doorknob thieves are causing Berlin householders much annoyance. Hotels, apartment houses, office buildings and private dwellings are all prey to the searchers for second-hand brass. In one of Berlin's leading hotels all the brass nozzles on the fire hose in the corridors disappeared one night, together with many other brass fixtures.

SAYS ALLENRHU SURELY CONQUERS RHEUMATISM

Winchester, Ky., Citizen Cheerfully Recommends This Wonderful Remedy to All Sufferers

His letter follows: "Burns Avenue, Winchester, Ky. I had severe rheumatism for three months; tried several remedies without receiving any benefit whatever. A friend advised me to try ALLENRHU, as it had cured him. I bought three bottles from the George Drug Co., this city. When I began taking this medicine I was unable to do any work. I could neither dress myself nor raise my hand to comb my hair. I am now almost well and feel confident this last of the three bottles I am now taking will completely cure me. I can cheerfully recommend this truly wonderful remedy to any rheumatic sufferer." (Signed) Asa E. Keer.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the patient was helpless. Mr. James H. Allen of Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the tortures of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers the worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee the first pint bottle to show appreciable results or money back in every instance. Roberts & Echols can supply you.—Advertisement.

100 ARE PRESENT AT SCHOLARSHIP FUND CONCERT

About 100 persons were present at the Occidental Women's Glee club concert in the Woman's club house, Friday evening. The college girls, with their fresh young voices, seemed to fit in properly with the purpose of the concert, the initial step towards raising a $200 scholarship fund for some Eagle Rock girl. From the opening number, "Nature's Resurrection," until the close of the program, they were applauded enthusiastically and called back for frequent encores.

A wide variety of musical selections—tender lullabies, snappy Spanish songs, character songs and opera selections—were offered. The instrumental numbers proved popular. The selections from the "Mikado" were especially well received. The young ladies appeared on the stage in Japanese costumes of pastel shades, and made a pretty and harmonious picture behind the embankment of spring blossoms heaped over the footlights. Their little Japanese steps and fan poses were delightful.

Mrs. H. I. Cruzan announced the numbers. The reception committee was made up of Mrs. Cruzan, Mrs. Mary Fliske, Mrs. C. W. Young, Mrs. Ruth Shearman and Mrs. S. B. Osborne.

During intermission, Mrs. Lee explained the aim of the Woman's club in raising the scholarship fund, and thanked the Glee club for assistance, and also extended the thanks of the Woman's club to those present, for their support.

RUSSIA'S ACTION CHALLENGES GOD, SAYS C. S. PROUT

What will be the outcome of Red Russia's challenge to God, was a question answered by C. S. Prout at the Adventist Tabernacle in Eagle Rock Sunday evening. The speaker drew a historical parallel between Russia in her present attitude toward religion, and the ancient kingdom of Babylon.

Reading from the Literary Digest of April 14, Rev. Prout drew attention to recent acts by which soviet Russia has openly proclaimed her atheism and defiance of God. Figures of Christ, Moses and Mohammed were carted through the streets of Moscow as objects of scorn and derision, and were then thrown into fire and burned, while young men dressed as devils mocked and challenged the beings thus represented. This blasphemous proceeding had the official sanction of the government.

King Belshazzar of Babylon openly defied the God of Israel at his drunken feast in which he drank wine from the sacred vessels taken from the house of God at Jerusalem, at the same time praising the gods of wood and stone. The same hour came the sudden and awful interruption of his feast by the ghostly hand which wrote mysterious characters upon the wall before their eyes, causing the king and all those with him to tremble and realize the presence of that God whom they had derided; and the same night Belshazzar was slain and his kingdom passed into the hands of the Medes. The judgments of God upon Babylon had been foretold by the prophet Jeremiah long before Belshazzar's reign (see Jer. 51), and the wise men of that day might have read these prophecies and known what was going to happen; just as we may know from the Word of God what is going to happen in our day.

Not only Russia, but other nations, in general, are today manifesting their independence of God, the speaker said. They have accepted ideas which make God's word a fable and a lie. Clergymen are heartily denying the miracles of Christ. The forms of godliness exist without the power, while in point of pride, love of display, and squandering of money upon luxuries, they vie with the time of ancient Babylon. Men seem to have lost their regard for sacred things. The position of the world today, the speaker declared, is parallel to that of Babylon on the eve of Belshazzar's feast.

Rev. Prout will speak Wednesday evening on the subject "Primeval Barbarians Masquerading Today as Modern Prophets."

GREEK BISHOP ACTIVE IN AIDING RED CROSS
[By Associated Press]
ATHENS, April 9.—Operation of a speakers' bureau may not sound like emergency relief work, but it is having an important part in the campaign of the American Red Cross in Greece to educate the million or more refugees from Asia Minor and eastern Thrace. The educational campaign is being developed along the lines of sanitary discipline to prevent and check outbreaks of typhus, typhoid, dysentery, smallpox and other epidemic diseases.

The part the speakers' bureau plays involves the aid of the entire clergy in Athens, both Greek and Roman Catholic, the Ribbinate of Athens, and prelates from churches in Asia Minor who are now refugees. Acting unanimously in an endeavor to help the Red Cross, the Archbishops of Ephesus, Philadelphia, Krini, Metron, Tyrolores and Arghyroupoulos have pledged themselves to go to the refugee centers and preach on sanitation.

Rare Species of Speeder Discovered

As a prospective "High Mogul" for the S. M. C. A. (Saturday Morning Violator's Association), Ralph Benton, who appeared before Judge H. I. Cruzan in the local court Saturday morning, registers 100% plus. It might appear that collecting court summonses is his hobby, judging from the manner in which he mixed his "recommendations" for the chief's office in the S. M. V. A. when called upon by Judge Cruzan to present his summons card.

Upon examination of the card, Judge Cruzan said, "Why, you're in the wrong court, aren't you? This tag calls for your appearance before Judge Lowe. Sorry, but you're not one of my cases—you're in the wrong city." Just a minute, just a minute," and Mr. Benton reached into an inner pocket and pulled out a sheaf of papers. From among them he extracted another slip and handed it to the judge with a smile.

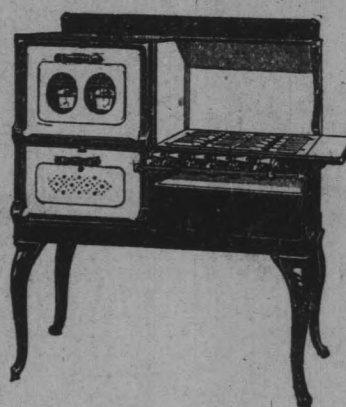

"Well, I've met all kinds of curio collectors, but you're the rarest, I think," said the judge as he discovered that the second slip called for Mr. Benton's appearance in the Eagle Rock court.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 28.—The new municipal golf course will be opened here July 1. The links will be in charge of Fred X. Fry who is coming here from Seattle in June.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
TO OUR PATRONS
For some time an advance in the price of milk has been anticipated. Due to the high price and scarcity of all dairy feeds and the increasing costs of creamery supplies, etc.
Therefore, we are asking you to co-operate with us to the extent of keeping the present prices and avoid a raise by doing away with the accounts and installing the TICKET or CASH SYSTEM on and after May 1, 1923.
Thereby eliminating our expensive bookkeeping, clerical forces and no end of stationery costs.
Thanking you for your co-operation and patronage, we remain,
THE GLENDALE CREAMERY CO.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF BURBANK AND ITS ENVIRONS

DR. THOMPSON TO RETURN MAY 8
TO BURBANK

Noted Physician Will Arrive From Winter's Study in Europe

Dr. E. H. Thompson, who has been abroad studying for the winter, will soon return to Burbank, according to his nephew, Attorney Clifford Thompson. Attorney Thompson said a wire had been received at the Burbank hospital that the doctor would be here a week from Tuesday. His trunks arrived Saturday.

MRS. FILLBACH TO ENTERTAIN AT LUNCHEON

Will Be Hostess to Club Directors at Good-fellows Club

Mrs. Andrew C. Fillbach will entertain the board of directors of the Woman's club at the Good Fellows club at a 1 o'clock luncheon Tuesday noon. Following the luncheon, the board will conduct the regular business meeting.

CALGARY STUDIES MEANS TO PROVIDE FOR STORK
[By Associated Press]
CALGARY, Alta., April 30.—The health committee of the local Council of Women has asked Mayor Webster to have the city open a "stork account."

The plan is to have expectant mothers deposit a small sum each week with the city treasurer, to relieve her of anxiety when the stork arrives, and assure her of adequate medical care.

The trouble with the usual installment plan, the women found, was that it became effective after the child had been born, and proved hard to meet with additional family expenses.

Coming Election Holds
Interest of Women

Election day, a week from Tuesday, at the Woman's club rooms, is occupying the attention of a large number of women today. There are five directors, the president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary and treasurer to be chosen. A new constitution will affect the officers chosen at this time, as the president will serve for two years and the directors will be chosen to serve a longer period than in the past. Mrs. J. A. Johnson, present president, will not doubt be re-elected. She has said that she is planning a long trip East, but many people think that this would help the club to hear about how Eastern clubs are doing, and they would be glad to have her represent the Burbank club wherever she visits. If a strong vice-president is chosen, then the president could easily be absent from meetings.

In case Mrs. Johnson does not run, other names have been suggested. Mrs. Walter Fisher and Attorney Margaret Yale have been frequently mentioned as possible candidates. If Mrs. Johnson accepts the honor of re-election, then it is expected that both Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Yale would be excellent on the board of directors. Other names suggested for the board of directors are Mrs. Kate Thimman, Mrs. Doan and Mrs. May Clarke. The directors will be the five who receive the greatest number of votes next to the president.

Mrs. E. A. Fischer, present vice-president; Mrs. A. C. Fillbach, present recording secretary; Mrs. Hazel Chapman, present treasurer, are other officers whom it is expected will be re-elected next Tuesday.

The council, which meets four times a year, consisting of the officers, board of directors and committee, chairman, was scheduled to hold the last quarterly meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the club rooms.

MRS. YALE TO ENTERTAIN
Attorney Margaret Yale will have for house guests for an extended visit, her mother and sister, Mrs. Margaret Dickinson and Mrs. William Hines. The sister, Mrs. Hines, will go to Texas to see about the property of the Strand Petroleum company, of which her husband is owner.

Mrs. Yale has added another member to her office staff, Mrs. Penn, so that she may devote more time to her visitors while they are in Burbank.

Mrs. O. H. Sken, 715 North Angeleno avenue, has been entertaining Mrs. Adah Sken of Hollywood for the past few days.

MAY DAY PLAY TO
HERALD MERRY
MONTH

"Tomorrow will be the happiest time of all the glad new year—the merriest, maddest day" and will usher in one of the happiest months for Burbank people. Good times will not be limited to the tiny ones, although the first day seems to be one especially for them.

May-day flower baskets, concoctions made of dainty tissue paper frills and garlands of flowers, will be hung tonight by the younger children who can not wake early enough to hang them Tuesday. The making of these pretty things have been an important part of the child's life for the past few days, but not half as important as the thoughts of the May-day pageant which the Edison school children will stage Tuesday evening at the close of May day at the Edison building.

For days, not only have teachers and children been working for the affair, but mothers have been gathering at the Edison building to help make the costumes. The flower dresses, the birds, butterflies and masques which will help to make the entertainment so charming have not only cost more than a hundred dollars in money, but a great amount of time and thought. The parents are getting as much joy and pleasure out of it as the teachers and children. The music, the colors and the children themselves will make the end of the May day one that will be treasured.

The month will have many other lovely social affairs for all. One of the first of the important social functions will be the luncheon at the Good Fellows club given by Mrs. A. C. Fillbach to the directors of the Women's club.

The Choral club has two very fine concerts arranged for the month, the first one being on Mothers' Day, May 13, when they plan to make it a memorable event and one that will be repeated annually.

Mrs. Grace Lovejoy of the Progressive School of Music has arranged two very excellent socials for the Music Memory contest to be given by her pupils at the John Muir junior high school. The awarding of the prizes to the high scoring children of the Music Memory contest will take place the last Friday evening in May when Mrs. Sparrow and the Burbank music store will give a concert open to the public.

The advanced pupils of Mrs. Sparrow will give a recital on May

The Choral club will broadcast a program for the Federation of State Music clubs during this month. So the musical interests will find this a profitable month.

Among the various anniversaries of the month will be Memorial day on May 30, the anniversary of the sending of the first telegraph message, May 24, 1844; the establishing of the Bank of North America on May 26, 1781; the Yanks' first big victory at Cantigny, May 28, 1918; the anniversary that pacifists do not want to remember, May 7, 1915, when the Lusitania was torpedoed.

The entire month will be a time when every morning—

"Day, faster and more fast
O'er night's brim, day boils at last,
Boils pure gold o'er the cloud

cup's brim." Everyone will sing Pippa's song: "The year's at the spring, And day's at the morn; Morning's at seven, The hillside's dew-pearled, The lark's on the wing, The snail's on the thorn; God's in His heaven— All's right with the world."

ATTEND COUNTRY CLUB LUNCHEON

CLUB CHAIRMAN
LOOKS FOR JOB

Employment Head of the Business and Professional Women of Officers Work

Can you keep house neatly and cook in hygienic manner? Mrs. Horn, employment chairman of the Business and Professional Women's club is looking for a woman who needs work and who can keep house satisfactorily. An elderly couple in Los Angeles have written that they will board and room and pay $50 a month for such a person. This case is only one of many inquiries which Mrs. Horn has received concerning the finding of an employee. The various departments of the club cover a wide range of interests and all are practical with a definite object that can be achieved.

SAYS RAINFALL CREATED LAKES

[By Associated Press]
RENO, Nev., April 30.—About 400 years before the birth of Christ northwestern America experienced a period of heavy rainfall and thus western Nevada lakes were formed, according to Dr. J. Claude Jones, dean of the geology department of the University of Nevada here.

Dr. Jones believes that many of the lakes in this region are the residue of the ancient body of water known as Lake Lahontan and he discounts the theories of other geologists that Lake Lahontan was formed by an arm of the sea that extended into Nevada from Oregon. At its greatest height, he believes, Lake Lahontan covered an area of 8500 square miles and had a drainage basin of 45,000 square miles in northwestern Nevada, or over half the area of the present state. The lake also extended slightly into California and Oregon.

Dr. Jones bases his estimate of the age of the ancient lake on the time required for the Truckee river to make the salt deposits which appear at Pyramid lake. The belief that tufa grew only in saline waters, and the presence of large deposits of tufa at Pyramid, was one of the reason earlier geologists had for believing that Lake Lahontan was originally part of the ocean, according to Dr. Jones.

Music Memory Contest
Scrap Book Clippings

RICHARD WAGNER
Miss Verla Freyberger, supervisor of music at the John Muir junior high school, who has been in charge of the music memory contest, has furnished the material for most of the scrapbook clippings. The following sketch of Richard Wagner she secured from the book, "In Music Land," by George Upton. The book is one that would quite enchant any girl or boy.

Wilhelm Richard Wagner was born at Leipzig in 1813. He died in Venice, Italy, in 1883. In telling of him, Upton writes: "He had more enemies than any composer who ever lived. From the time he was a boy to the time he died, his life was one continual struggle with his enemies, but he was a good fighter and in the end he won, and his music influenced, more or less, every composer of operas in his time."

"His enemies called him all sorts of vile names and even declared he was crazy because he upset all the traditions, and as they insisted, violated all the rules of music and the stage."

"His greatest work is called the 'Ring of the Nibelungs' and it is composed of four dramatic poems, 'Das Rheingold,' (the Rhine Gold), 'Die Walkure,' (Siegfried and 'Die Gotterdammerung' (the Twilight of the Gods). The story is of many wonderful things. You will meet beautiful maidens swimming about in the depths of the Rhine river, giants, dwarfs, dragons and gnomes, rainbow bridges, Valkyrs on their steeds riding through the clouds and carrying the bodies of warriors slain in battle to Valhalla, the last resting place of heroes; magic swords and horns; a fight with the monstrous dragon Fafner; songs of mysterious birds in the wood, beautiful spring songs, forest music and water music, and at the close, a great funeral march and Valhalla blazing in the sky, the meaning of which is that the gods have been overcome by human power, because love has been given to men and is stronger than death."

When you see this acted out on the stage and sung by famous opera singers, you will want to see it over again and again. Long before you are able to hear and see the four operas, no doubt, you will hear various fragments of it such as "Brunnhilde's Battle Cry," either on records or at some concert.

The selections you studied today and Tuesday are from an earlier music-drama, "Tannhauser." It was first staged at Dresden in 1845. Fourteen years later, 1859, it was presented in New York for the first time. The story of this drama

MAN KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

Young Man Returning From Dance Hits Auto Truck

The inquest over the body of Ira Penland, of Simi, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Fillbach Mortician parlors. Details of the accident, which happened early Saturday morning, when Ira Penland was returning from a dance, will be told at this time.

The Penland automobile struck the back end of a truck and Mr. Penland, who was driving, suffered a broken leg and internal injuries. His brother, D. W. Penland, and his mother, who live at Simi, were summoned, and they brought him down to take him to the hospital, but he died on the way and his body was taken to the Fillbach Mortician parlors.

Choral Club to Represent Federation

A distinct honor has come to the Burbank Choral club and an honor that will bring with it the much talked-of publicity for the town. The Choral club has been asked to represent the State Federation of Musical Clubs for their monthly program, which will be given May 25 at the Anthony, Inc., radio station.

"H. J. I." was out this past week to ask Attorney Margaret Yale to make arrangements for the concert, as the Burbank Choral club had been chosen by the federation to give the concert for them during Musical week in Los Angeles. This is a decided honor at any time, but to be asked to represent the federation during Musical week is considered by musicians to be an even greater honor. There will probably be duets and solos, in addition to the chorus, and a short address by some official of the club.

is a conflict of two kinds of love in which the higher love triumphs. "Tannhauser" is a knight and a minstrel. "The Pilgrims' Chorus," studied today, is a part of the first act, and the setting is in a German valley. The study tomorrow is in the third act of the play and the setting is in the German valley near Wartburg.

Tuesday's clipping will be about the composer of this music.

Truths in Epigram

A young man will be wiser by and by—Tennyson.

Man always worships something; always he sees the infinite shadowed forth in something finite—Carlyle.

The labor we delight in physics pain—Shakespeare.

Our words have wings, but fly not where we would—George Eliot.

PROTECTING THE SCHOOLS

An effort is in progress to instill into the minds of public school pupils the spirit that finds complete expression in the ruin of Russia. The endeavor is viewed with indignation rather than with alarm. There is not believed to be any real danger that a movement to poison the mentality of youth can succeed. Nevertheless, were it to be ignored, the movement would represent a real danger. Alert and loyal citizenship, ever on the watch, prevents it from being a peril. Yet to guard against it, to prevent its growth, and ultimately to eliminate the hateful doctrines of bolshevism, is an imperative duty.

There are certain publications in this country, existing under the freedom of press made permissible by the constitution, that exercise constantly a malign influence. They are hostile to American institutions. So far as possible they bring into contempt the achievements, the ambitions and the methods of the government and people. Either openly or covertly, they exalt the tragic failure of the soviets into the triumph of human rights. It is not that they inveigh against an incompetent congress they are objectionable, for this would come within the rights of any observer. It is not that they lie about historic fact, for the lies are ever present. It is that they have the deliberate purpose of overthrowing the government; that for this purpose some of them advocate resort to violence. It is that in every line, and between all lines they print, there is the essence of treason. They purvey these vacuous as to logic or fairness, but reeking venom, and these they would like to have placed before the growing generation, the men and women of tomorrow.

Two publications undesirable on some of these grounds have been barred from the schools of some cities. The potential bolsheviks are aggrieved. They want the bars removed. They seek to institute such control over the schools as shall open these to the doctrine of discontent and hatred. They would, if they could, sow the seeds of an alien and hideous policy, hoping it to develop into the full flower of revolution. The plan is to sovietize the schools. The motives are sinister, the system of approach treacherous. It is possible that some have been lured to aid the evil cause, not knowing what they do; dupes and tools of knaves more shrewd.

It is for citizens to protect their schools. They will do it. At least the agents and agencies of social destruction will not be permitted to find haven there.

PROMOTING DISCORD

The studied attempt to stir strife between India and England may be assumed to have its roots in a hatred manifest in many relations in life. The basis of this hatred sometimes is difficult to explain. As shown in Russia there is little of mystery about it. But why it should seek to shape the activities of distant peoples, has to be accounted for in a different way. A part of the effort to embroil a world, to which embroilment might mean ruin, is discerned in India. It appears as an overflow from the north. Bolshevism, having sent one government into collapse, desires to ravish all government. Journalists, even in the United States, lead themselves to the promotion of the plan. A lot of quaint and feather-brained theorists advocate it. They could not tell why, for they do not know why. They are as children, who would set fire to a house for the excitement of seeing it burn.

An educated native of India, now visiting in this country, says, "with England and America divided, the hope of civilization would be dead."

The continued abuse of England by an element of the American press, is for the purpose of bringing about, precisely the division indicated. A part of the abuse is in misrepresenting the results of British rule in India, a country that owes more to England for benefits conferred than could be estimated. It is nothing to these disturbers that their course, if effective, would mean a sweep of Europe by bolshevism. So eager are they to satisfy grudges, that a fact which should be a vital consideration, means nothing to them.

There is a certain stability to civilization, but there is not an absolute security. Conduct based on the desire to create trouble, must be negated by the common sense of the majority. The hatred for one country, reaching such intensity that it would sacrifice not only that country, but the family of nations, is an unreasoning and peculiarly dangerous passion.

The rumor that Will Hays is to leave his position with the motion picture producers to go back into politics does not greatly impress. There seldom is anything that politics may offer to offset such a salary as Hays is receiving. Of course there are men ready to sacrifice much to principle, but it would be hard to imagine one letting go a $150,000 job unless urged to such a course by the payers of the salary.

The tribute paid to the late G. Harold Powell at Washington was in perfect consonance with the career of the distinguished Californian. He had devoted to the public service a genius for hard work and accomplishment. By his character he had endeared himself to many. Such a life is worthy of being remembered.

Perhaps it surprised the I. W. W. to find that the authority of an organization opposed to working, is not recognized by workers. The right of a chronic loafer never has been established.

If success doesn't turn a man's head it's a sign that he has a stiff neck.

AN UNFORTUNATE CAPTION

"Sun Breaking Into Pieces, Says Noted Scientist" is a caption over certain remarks attributed to Dr. W. W. Campbell of Lick Observatory. It happens that there is nothing in the context to justify the headline. It hardly is to be supposed that the distinguished student of astronomy went so far as to say the sun is "disintegrating." That seems to have been an interpretation supplied by the correspondent. The only apparent ground for it is the allegation that the sun is continuously throwing off fine particles of matter in all directions. This statement is not startling in the least. That the great orb moving at mighty speed through space should do precisely this, seems natural. It does not argue, as the ignorant might conclude, that the energy of the sun is being depleted, or its character in any manner changed. If it is casting off particles now, doubtless it has been doing so for measureless millions of years. There is no human intelligence capable of saying that the process may not continue indefinitely.

Much is being found as to the character of the heavenly bodies, not only of the one commonly regarded as "the sun," but of others vastly remote, and many times greater. The human mind accepts with avidity the truth concerning matters of which for ages little had been known. It is startled and discomfited when there comes the announcement of disintegration, as this would be an operation stupendous in its magnitude. The statement impresses the type of intelligence that is stirred by the allegation that the world is coming to an end, or that the sun is growing cold, promising ultimate extinction of all life from freezing. On the other hand, there has been from time to time the prophesy that heat, of course from the same source, was to be the instrument of destruction. These are mere conjectures, wholly baseless. There is an impulse to place the prediction of a disintegrating orb in the same category.

Love sometimes sneaks out at the window without waiting for poverty to come in at the door.

Science and the Innocent Bystander

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Darn science. It's always proving something that nobody wants to believe.

There is Billy Bryan aching under the scientists' statements that his ancestors were more or less remotely related to the simians; and before he has finished denying it here comes Dr. Raymond Pearl, heralded by no less a person than Samuel Hopkins Adams as the super-scientist of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, and proves by experiments on chickens and things that alcohol not only does not shorten life but actually prolongs it.

This in the face of all the statistics of the life insurance companies and the statements of all the prohibitionists.

Can you beat it? Dr. Pearl declares that his alcoholized chickens are "almost invariably harder, more resistant to disease and longer lived than the non-alcoholic fowls."

And this after extensive experiments at the main agricultural experiment station where the alcoholic birds have basked in the fumes of booze and where alcoholic roosters have been crossed with prohibition hens, prohibition roosters mated with alcoholic hens, and strictly prohibition couples mated and their progeny compared, generation after generation, with the progeny of alcoholic couples.

Dr. Pearl's theory is that alcohol, being an active poison, kills off dangerous germs in the system and allows only the strong to survive.

Whew.

But the wets will please cease throwing their hats into the air.

The prohibition law will remain fast stuck in the statute books. Why? Not because alcohol kills people, but because it deprives them of their higher mental faculties and makes them anti-social and irresponsible.

But what is bothering yours truly is this: If you can't trust science, what can you trust?

Hate we all go, and as a nation vote dry on the figures compiled by life insurance companies and medics, and finally along comes a scientist with an eye for accuracy and the patience to experiment. And we, the innocent bystanders, discover that we have been believing a whole volume of things that were not so.

Anyhow, we voted booze out before Dr. Pearl put a number one argument into the mouths of the wets.

J. S. Bannon, Chicago: "Please advise if the use of the word compromise, as indicated in the following sentence, is grammatically correct: 'These claims were finally disposed of on the basis of a compromise settlement.' If not, what is the correct word to be used in this instance?"

Answer: Compromise is either a noun or a verb, not an adjective. Furthermore, compromise means an agreement or an arrangement for the settlement of a controversy, or the adjustment of conflicting views. Therefore, it is sufficient to say, "These claims were disposed of on the basis of a compromise."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

My boy, go often and talk with enthusiasts. Sane enthusiasts. Enthusiasts who want to make something. To develop something.

To improve something. To build something.

The world has been advanced by the enthusiasts. Men and women who wanted to do something.

Wanted to do something so earnestly that eating and drinking became comparatively unimportant.

The little things of life became insignificant. Every impulse as far as possible was directed toward the purpose to be attained.

Enthusiasm is merely spirit illumined by purpose. The great books of the world. The great discoveries of the world. The great scientific achievements of the world.

The canals and pyramids and temples and roads and aqueducts and paintings and poems, philosophies and religions have grown out of spirit illumined by purpose.

So when you find an enthusiast go and talk with him if he will let you. Whether he is studying stars or growing roses.

Observe the light in his eye. Take note of the ardor of his spirit and the ring in his voice and the spring in his step.

It is a splendid thing to be enthusiastic. To be enthusiastic for growth and what may lead to it.

Enthusiasm knows nothing of weariness. Nothing of despair. Nothing of doubt. Nothing of turning back.

It knows only purpose directed toward wholesome achievement. Get some of it into your spirit. It will let you live a dozen days in one. A dozen lifetimes in one.

Another man sits at a desk and pours out the truth upon paper. Hours mean nothing to him except as time for doing his work.

Money means little except as it enables him to carry on his work. But human beings mean everything to him. And he writes the truth that they may read it and be happier.

He is an enthusiast. Enthusiasm knows nothing of weariness. Nothing of despair. Nothing of doubt. Nothing of turning back.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Possibility that readers of this column wonder why so much is said in it concerning Russia suggests the courtesy of an explanation.

It is not that any faint hope exists of bringing about reformation in that just now God-forsaken country. That will have to come, if ever to come, when the people there shall have gathered strength to overthrow their masters, assert their freedom, and set up a government.

Nothing that may be said in this country makes the slightest difference so far as Russian bolshevism is concerned. In the first place it does not reach the people there. They have been made to believe that America is in the throes of revolution; the bloody revolution so dear to the unspeakable tyrants at Moscow.

The theme is worth treating often and with frankness because there are bolsheviks in this country; because despite the prosperity that is the rule here, and despite the liberty that is the portion of all law-abiding folk, a perverted and diabolic trend has been imparted to some currents of American thought.

Russia, were it to confine its monstrous doctrines to its own territory, might be a spectacle to be viewed from afar, with regret and loathing, and without fear. But as a reservoir of iniquity, it overflows, sending a poisonous stream throughout the world. A combination of malignity, intrigue and brutality, the foe of human rights, the scoff at God; capable of naught but evil; seeking to destroy faith, love and loyalty, it sends forth lies. Violence and falsehood are its instruments. And in this free land this horrid thing has a following.

It would be fine for the enlightening of the public if every resident of the United States could hear Madame Ponaifidine, a late arrival from the desolation of Russia. She had lived in Russia for many years. There her children were born and grew to manhood.

She stands as the first messenger out of Russia unqualifiedly entitled to credence. One hearing her knows that she is telling the truth; that she is tending in twain the veil of secrecy. An American woman of distinguished lineage, her refinement evident in each word and gesture, the tale of her experience carries absolute conviction.

She told of one of the reasons that deception has been possible. Visitors whose good opinion is courted are received by a governmental committee. They become the honored and pampered guests of the soviets. They are given luxurious quarters, ride in modern cars. They do not learn facts, for these are hidden.

At the same time that American guests were receiving such treatment Madame Ponaifidine had occasion to ride from her confiscated estate to Moscow. To do this she had to bribe the ticket seller. She was forced to ride outside, in bitter weather, on the second step of the platform. She was going for the purpose of getting permission to buy a quart of milk daily for her invalid husband. This milk was the product of cows taken from the Ponaifidine estate. The permission was given, however, but later withheld. The laborious operation was repeated. The last official interdiction of the traffic in milk came the morning after the death of the husband. However, these are but comparatively colorless incidents in a tragic experience, heartrending and poignant.

Leaving aside the thefts, the incompetency, the cruelty of the ruling regime; omitting more than mere reference to the long struggle to escape, it may be mentioned that this notable woman, survivor of a relentless martyrdom, made several points quite apart from personal narrative, among them these:

Bolshevism is not designed as a Russian movement, but as a world movement. It rests on the possibility of destroying belief in God, or in future existence. It includes abolition of the family. It demands the end of that feeling described as patriotism. The area to be subjected to the blight and rottenness of bolshevism is not Russia, but the world.

Now comes the marvel of it all. In papers printed in the United States may be found laudation of bolshevism. It drips from the lips of such propagandists as Steffens. It is drooled by long-haired communists, inducted into the midst of Americans who are innocently unsuspecting that they might with greater safety entertain hissing serpents. People of respectability absorb the poison. Kind-hearted philanthropists are led into the error of supporting a cause that withers the bodies and souls of men. They become unconsciously accessory to uncounted murders.

For these reasons, and others, this column occasionally mentions the subject. It is in the hope of arousing a spirit of protest against a deadly invasion.

Reverting to the address of Madame Ponaifidine: The lady explained some of the methods of terrorism by which the people are kept in thrall. There is a complete record of each individual. This includes a list of relatives. Let the individual incur the displeasure of the rulers and he does not suffer alone. One young man, classmate of a son of the speaker, had become involved in a counter-revolution, or at least was accused. Eighty-seven of his relatives were shot, of course without trial, there being no charge on which to try them.

Due to an attempt upon the life of Lenin, hundreds were murdered. They were not charged with participation, or even sympathy for the effort to remove a monster. They were shot after arbitrary selection, each community having to yield a stated number to the sacrifice.

So this is the bolshevism concerning which the Steffenses of the United States rave, senators are befuddled, and which women of fat purses, big hearts, but no brains, support eagerly, unaware that they are supporting the arch criminals of the age.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

We entertained a highbrow last night. And we are not going to do it any more. Hereafter our guests shall be those whose foreheads slope back at a nice, easy angle and who can talk about things other than themselves. Because all the highbrows I know are only gabby along one line. That is what they, personally, individually, have done, thought, heard, said and the good things that have been said about them.

"Well," said my highbrow friend when the evening had finally been taken into the hall and clubbed to death, "well, it has been good to see you. I hope next time we get together we can have a good chat."

That was a wallop for me. A blow, a slap, a jab, a cruel poke. He wanted me to understand that he had come to my humble wicket to talk about himself. In return for that privilege he was willing to eat a good dinner, smoke a few expensive cigars, and bust Mr. Volstead's well-known penal code into forty fragments. He is that sort of highbrow. Human, but high.

"We have had a good chat," I said. During the evening the other guests danced. They sang songs when they wanted to. They talked about things general and entertaining. They told stories. They took this highbrow into their genial midst and tried to make him like the world.

"Oh, no," said the highbrow, "we have hardly had a chance to talk at all."

We've had all the chance I want. I'm down on highbrows. The world couldn't get along without 'em, any more than without nitrates or oxygen.

But some other fellow's reminiscences cannot hold my attention very long—highbrow or lowbrow.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MR. COOLIDGE'S FUTURE

(New Bedford Standard)

If the movement to nominate Theodore Roosevelt in place of Calvin Coolidge for vice president of the republic ticket should succeed, we are far from being convinced that it would be a bad thing for Mr. Coolidge. The vice presidency isn't much of a job. About all there is to it is the possibility of being called upon to perform the duties of the President in the event of the latter's death or disability. Four years ago Mr. Coolidge was one of the most conspicuous men in public life in the United States; now he is one of the least conspicuous, and all because of the position he occupies. In view of his political record in this state, in view of his excellent administration as governor and the firmness he showed at the time of the Boston police strike, in view of the qualities he has displayed throughout his career, we believe that Mr. Coolidge could be of greater service to the people in some other public position. Massachusetts will elect a senator next year to succeed David I. Walsh, and many people would like nothing better than to see Mr. Coolidge a member of the body over which he now presides. ## FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT. CHAPTER XXVIII

Loder's plan of action was arrived at before he reached Trafalgar Square. The facts of the case were simple. Chilcote had left an incriminating telegram on the bureau in the morning-room at Grosvenor Square; by an unlucky chance Lillian Astrupp had been shown up into that room, where she had remained alone until the moment that Eve, either by request or by accident, had found her there. The facts resolved themselves into one question. What use had Lillian made of those solitary moments? Without deviation, Loder's mind turned towards one answer. Lillian was not the woman to lose an opportunity, whether the space at her command were long or short. True, Eve too had been alone in the room, while Chilcote had accompanied Lillian to the door; but of this he made small account. Eve had been there, but Lillian had been there first. Judging by precedent, by personal character, by all human probability, it was not to be supposed that anything would have been left for the second-comer.

So convinced was he that, reaching Trafalgar Square, he stopped and hailed a hansom.

"Cadogan Gardens," he called. "No. 33."

The moments seemed very few before the cab drew up beside the curb and he caught his second glimpse of the enamelled door with its silver fittings. The white and silver gleamed in the sunshine; banks of cream-colored hyacinths clustered on the window-sills, filling the clear air with a warm and fragrant scent. With that strange sensation of having lived through the scene before, Loder left the cab and walked up the steps. Instantly he pressed the bell the door was opened by Lillian's discreet, deferential manservant.

"Is Lady Astrupp at home?" he asked.

The man looked thoughtful. "Her ladyship lunched at home, sir—" he began, cautiously.

But Loder interrupted him. "Ask her to see me," he said laconically. The servant expressed no surprise. His only comment was to throw the door wide.

"If you'll wait in the white room, sir," he said, "I'll inform her ladyship." Chilcote was evidently a frequent and favored visitor.

In this manner, Loder for the second time entered the house so unfamiliar—and yet so familiar in all that it suggested. Entering the drawing-room, he had leisure to look about him. It was a beautiful room, large and lofty; luxury was evident on every hand, but it was not the luxury that palls or offends. Each object was graceful, and possessed its own intrinsic value. The atmosphere was too effeminate to appeal to him, but he acknowledged the taste and artistic delicacy it conveyed. Almost at the moment of acknowledgment the door opened to admit Lillian.

She wore the same gown of pale-colored cloth, warmed and softened by rich furs, that she had worn on the day she and Chilcote had driven in the park. "She was drawing on her gloves as she came into the room," and pausing near the door, she looked across at Loder and, laughed in her slow, amused way.

"I thought it would be you," she said enigmatically.

Loder came forward. "You expected me?" he said, guardedly. A sudden conviction filled him that it was not the evidence of her eyes, but something at once subtler and more definite, that prompted her recognition of him.

She smiled. "Why should I expect you? On the contrary, I'm waiting to know why you're here?"

He was silent for an instant; then he answered in her own light tone. "As far as that goes," he said, "let's make it my duty call—having dined with you. I'm an old-fashioned person."

For a full second she surveyed him amusedly; then at last she spoke. "My dear Jack"—she laid particular stress on the name—"I never imagined you punctilious. I should have thought bohemian would have been more the word."

Loder felt disconcerted and annoyed. Either, like himself, she was fishing for information, or she was deliberately playing with him. In his perplexity, he glanced across the room towards the fireplace.

Lillian saw the look. "Won't you sit down?" she said, indicating the couch. "I promise not to make you smoke. I shan't even ask you to take off your gloves!"

Loder made no movement. His mind was unpleasantly upset. It was nearly a fortnight since he had seen Lillian, and in the interval her attitude had changed, and the change puzzled him. It might mean the philosophy of a woman who, knowing herself without adequate weapons, withdraws from a combat that has proved fruitless; or it might imply the merely catlike desire to toy with a certainty. He looked quickly at the delicate face, the green eyes somewhat obliquely set, the unreliable mouth; and instantly he inclined to the latter theory. The conviction that she possessed the telegram filled him suddenly, and with it came the desire to put his belief to the test—to know beyond question whether her smiling unconcern meant malice or mere entertainment.

"When you first came into the room," he said, quietly, "you said, 'I thought it would be you.' Why did you say that?"

Again she smiled—the smile that might be malicious or might be merely amused. "Oh," she answered at last, "I only meant that though I had been told Jack Chilcote wanted me, it wasn't Jack Chilcote I expected to see!"

After her statement there was a pause. Loder's position was difficult. Instinctively convinced that, strong in the possession of her proof, she was enjoying his tantalized discomfort, he yet craved the actual evidence that should set his suspicions to rest. Acting upon the desire, he made a new beginning.

"Do you know why I came?" he asked.

Lillian looked up innocently. "It's so hard to be certain of anything in this world," she said. "But one is always at liberty to guess."

Again he was perplexed. Her attitude was not quite the attitude of one who controls the game, and yet—He looked at her with a puzzled scrutiny. Women for him had always seemed the incomprehensible; he was at his best, his strongest, his surest in the presence of men. Feeling his disadvantage, yet determined to gain his end, he made a last attempt.

"How did you amuse yourself at Grosvenor Square this morning before Eve came to you?" he asked. The effort was awkwardly blunt, but it was direct.

Lillian was buttoning her glove. She did not raise her head as he spoke, but her fingers paused in their task. For a second she remained motionless, then she looked up slowly.

"Oh," she said, sweetly, "so I was right in my guess? You did come to find out whether I sat in the morning-room with my hands in my lap—or wandered about in search of entertainment?"

Loder colored with annoyance and apprehension. Every look, every tone of Lillian's was distasteful to him. No microscope could have revealed her more fully to him than did his own eyesight. But it was not the moment for personal antipathies; there were other interests than his own at stake. With new resolution he returned her glance.

"Then I must still ask my first question, why did you say, 'I thought it would be you?' His gaze was direct—so direct that it disconcerted her. She laughed a little uneasily.

"Because I knew."

"How did you know?"

"Because," she began; then again she laughed. "Because," she added, quickly, as if moved by a fresh impulse, "Jack Chilcote made it very obvious to any one who was in his morning-room at twelve o'clock today that it would be you and not he who would be found filling his place this afternoon! It's all very well to talk about honor, but when one walks into an empty room and sees a telegram as long as a letter open on a bureau—"

But her sentence was never finished. Loder had heard what he came to hear; any confession she might offer was of no moment in his eyes.

"My dear girl," he broke in, brusquely, "don't trouble! I should make a most unsatisfactory father confessor." He spoke quickly. His color was still high, but not of annoyance. His suspense was transformed into unpleasant certainty; but the exchange left him surer of himself. His perplexity had dropped to a quiet sense of self-reliance; his paramount desire was for solitude in which to prepare for the task that lay before him; the most congenial task the world possessed—the unravelling of Chilcote's tangled skein.

Looking into Lillian's eyes, he smiled. "Good-bye," he said, holding out his hand. "I think we've finished—for to-day."

She slowly extended her fingers. Her expression and attitude were slightly puzzled—a puzzlement that was either spontaneous or singularly well assumed. As their hands touched she smiled again.

"Will you drop in at the 'Arcadian' to-night?" she said. "It's the dramatized version of 'Other Men's Shoes'. The temptation to make you see it was too irresistible—as you know."

There was a pause while she waited for his answer—her head inclined to one side, her green eyes gleaming.

Loder, conscious of her regard, hesitated for a moment. Then his face cleared. "Right," he said, slowly. "The 'Arcadian' to-night!"

CHAPTER XXIX.

Loder's frame of mind as he left Cadogan Gardens was peculiar. Once more he was living in the present—the forceful, exhilarating present, and the knowledge braced him. Upon one point his mind was satisfied. Lillian Astrupp had found the telegram, and it remained to him to render her find valuable. How he proposed to do this, how he proposed to come out triumphant in face of such a situation, was a matter that as yet was shapeless in his mind; nevertheless, the danger—the sense of impending conflict—had a savor of life after the inaction of the day and night just passed. Chilcote in his weakness and his entanglement had turned to him; and he in his strength and capacity had responded to the appeal.

THE CHARACTERS AND STORY

JOHN CHILCOTE, member of the House of Commons, a party to a loveless marriage and a man whose drug addiction has places in life with

JOHN LODER, his exact counterpart in appearance, a successful in the deception that the masterful Loder becomes, only the strong political ally of

FRAIDE, the great party leader, but he is not suspected by the servants nor by Chilcote's beautiful but unhappy wife,

EVE, who, however, is mystified by her husband's change in manner. At a social function Loder is inveigled into a darkened tent, where

LADY LILLIAN ASTRUPP, intimate of Chilcote, indulging her hobby of crystal-gazing, makes him remove his rings, exposing the give-away scar on his finger. Loder, recognizing her as the woman who had jilted him in the past, eludes her without explanation. Loder is recalled by Chilcote, who resumes his own life. Chilcote makes an appointment to dine with Lady Lillian. He forgets the appointment and again changes places with Loder, who, noting the date and the initial "L" in Chilcote's engagement book, mistakes it for a political appointment with LAKELY, editor of St. George's. Loder is startled when he is ushered into the home and presence of Lady Astrupp. She asks him to remove his rings. He refuses. She declares he is not Chilcote. He neither denies nor affirms, but warns her before leaving that none will believe her story. Russian acts of aggression again British trading interests in Persia give Loder his great political opportunity. News of the assassination of a British consul-general fires him to an epochal speech in Parliament that overturns the cabinet. He is the hero of the hour and there are tears of joy in Eve's eyes. Realizing that he loves her and he goes back to Chilcote and announces that he intends to quit the masquerade. The wretched Chilcote leaves for home, but he is not gone for long. He returns to Loder with the news that an incriminating telegram he had written Loder imploring him to resume the deception disappeared after a visit by Lady Astrupp. Loder determines to unravel the tangle.

Realizing that he loves her and he goes back to Chilcote and announces that he intends to quit the masquerade. The wretched Chilcote leaves for home, but he is not gone for long. He returns to Loder with the news that an incriminating telegram he had written Loder imploring him to resume the deception disappeared after a visit by Lady Astrupp. Loder determines to unravel the tangle.

LAKELY, editor of St. George's. Loder is startled when he is ushered into the home and presence of Lady Astrupp. She asks him to remove his rings. He refuses. She declares he is not Chilcote. He neither denies nor affirms, but warns her before leaving that none will believe her story. Russian acts of aggression again British trading interests in Persia give Loder his great political opportunity. News of the assassination of a British consul-general fires him to an epochal speech in Parliament that overturns the cabinet. He is the hero of the hour

TO C. OF C. FUND

EAGLE ROCK, April 30.—The Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce is rapidly becoming a reality, the business men and residents of Eagle Rock have already subscribed $1000 toward the $3000 service fund which is the goal, in addition to the $36000 to be raised through obtaining 300 memberships at $12 a year.

Any amount is acceptable, and cards for the pledge of the money are being circulated throughout the business district. The main interest of the fund is to be able to support with some reciprocity in store for them. It is hoped that the remaining $3000 fund will be subscribed by Tuesday night, before the opening of the drive Wednesday morning.

The organizers have been working systematically since the booster meeting last Tuesday night, and the campaign committees are ready to take orders for the first onslaught, when it is probable, every resident of Eagle Rock will be invited to join the organization.

On Tuesday night the 125 people who are to take charge of the drive will be divided into 25 teams. These teams will each be given a district and precinct to canvass. It is planned to have them meet each evening at 6:30 for a dinner at which reports will be made of the work of the current day. In the evening after the dinners which will be closed promptly at 7:30, details organized for evening work will set out on another canvassing campaign. They will present the matter to the people in a direct and authentic form, giving them the details of the work planned for Eagle Rock of the future by the enlarged Chamber of Commerce. For three days this work will be carried on, and then early next week, on Tuesday the 8th, if arrangements can be made, a meeting of the new membership will be called to consider the by-laws and the constitution to be adopted by the new body.

There is a confident feeling among those in charge that the 300 members will be enrolled in a short time.

Peter's Trial Sermon,
Keith Brooks' Topic

Peter's Trial Sermon recorded in the second chapter of Acts was the subject of the Bible lesson given by Keith L. Brooks at the city hall, Sunday morning for the Brotherhood of the Presbyterian church.

He said in part: "Here you will find a life-sized photograph of Peter. When you see the change that has taken place in him since his denial of the Lord, you will get an idea of what the filling of the Holy Spirit does for a man. He had been impetuous, unbalanced and even cowardly. Now he is a burning speaker. There is something in his tone, never heard before. Where did he get that grasp of the Bible? We would never have taken him for an ardent student and certainly not an expositor. He had been a dull student, repeatedly rebuked by the Lord, but now he opens up the prophecies, going into the Psalms of David and expounds the doctrine of Christ from beginning to end. His sermon is full of the Bible and Christ. No sermon is worth the wind it takes if it is not impregnated with the inspired Word itself. Therefore, Peter's sermon is a model. This man with the smell of fish scarcely off his hands—this man who had never been inside a school of the prophets, preaches his first sermon and there is nothing in the Bible to beat it."

"Ye Men of Judea, be this known unto you. Hearken to my words! Notice his positiveness. He did not say, 'He thinks,' or 'It seems to me,' or 'may it not be' but he had a 'Thus saith the Lord' back of him. This positive note is lacking in much of the preaching today. A very short man once tried to put up a nail upon which to hang a picture. He piled a number of books on a chair in order to reach high enough, but he could not get one good crack at the nail. Finally his wife said, 'John, why don't you hit it one blow and be done with it?' He replied, 'How can I, standing on a foundation like this?' Many a preacher today has lost his foundation and, therefore, has not power in his message."

"When the sermon was completed, hundreds of the people were packed in their chairs and chanted out to the apostles, 'What shall we do?' Peter had hit the right spot. With the heart, man believeth unto righteousness. Salvation is a heart affair. Merely a stuffed head will not take any man into heaven. We need to pray for a ministry that will prick hearts. There are too many people who want nothing but nothing syrup. They do not care to listen to a sermon that will disturb their conscience. We need ministers who will tell the whole truth as Peter did and let the Spirit of God take care of it. What Peter preached in this sermon is what every true minister should preach. Change this message and give short little moral essays and chats about current events and there will be no answer in the human heart. No one will be crying out, 'What must I do to be saved?' A man who recently heard a popular Los Angeles preacher, went to him after the sermon and said, 'Almost thou persuadest me to be a heathen.'"

"Peter said, 'Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.' Three thousand people were saved. In these days it takes about three thousand sermons to get one conversion. The Lord

MY JOB

I want to be square with my job.
I don't want to cheat or to shirk;
When the day's hours have run
And the day's work is done,
I want to look back on my work
With the thought I played fair,
Gave my whole-hearted share,
I want to be square with my job.

I want to be square with my job.
I don't want to slink from my place
Like a swindler and cheat;
I just want to meet
That job with a smile on my face,
Not to skulk and to hide,
But to meet it with pride,
I want to be square with my job.

I want to be square with my job.
Whatever it happens to be,
In the grease, in the dirt,
Where it is it won't hurt,
If I give it the best that's in me,
If it's little or big,
I want to be square with my job.

I want to be square with my job.
In this great, busy workshop of men,
I want to be glad
For the job that I had,
With a sledge or a pick or a pen,
To stand square on my feet,
Not a quitter or cheat,
Lord, help me be square with my job.

continued to add to the church daily such as should be saved. Only the Lord can make any real additions. God's church is everywhere split up too much, no doubt, into sections, yet the church of God is one. God's question is, 'Are you born again?' An up-to-date way of becoming a Christian is to join the church by telephone and send one's photograph to be sprinkled, but this is not the kind of additions God makes. His church is made up of the 'born again,' the pure, the meek. It is the one select race from all Christian folds in every place."

CUSTER MASSACRE
SHORTLY
[By Associated Press]

HELENA, Mont., April 30.—A narrative of the Sioux campaign of 1876 in which occurred the Custer massacre, written at the time the fighting occurred by a participant in it, will be published this summer by the Montana Historical Society.

The narrative is from a manuscript record by Lieut. James H. Bradley, who was a member of the Seventh United States Infantry stationed at Fort Shaw, a few miles west of what is now Great Falls, Mont., when it was ordered to the valley of the Big Horn River to meet the Seventh Cavalry under General Custer and several other detachments. Its arrival was a few hours too late. Several thousand Indians had overwhelmed Custer's force and were gone before the other troops arrived.

Lieut. Bradley was stationed at Montana, at Fort Benton and Shaw, from 1871 until he was killed in the battle with Chief Joseph the Nez Perce leader, in the Hole Basin, in what is now Beaverhead county, Mont., close to the Idaho line, in 1877.

Lieut. Bradley was a prolific writer and filled a dozen manuscript books with data on the early days of Montana, Indian habits and customs and accurate accounts of the Indian warfare of the seventies.

After Lieut. Bradley's death his manuscript records were bought by the Montana Historical Society, in 1881 from his widow, who lived in Georgia. Excerpts from them have been published by the society and the volume which will be issued this summer will contain all the unpublished parts of his voluminous manuscripts.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 28.—The demand for homes continues strong in Sacramento, despite a record number of building permits. For the six months ending March 15, last, permits had been issued for the construction of 552 dwellings, and the indications are that number will be greatly increased during the year.

Noisy People

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

One may safely set it down as a rule that habitually noisy people stand in much the same relation to quiet ones as a shallow stream of water yelping its way among rocks and stones does to a silently flowing deep river.

The power of the river, as everybody knows, is vastly superior to that of the shallow stream. Yet if one were to judge only from the hub-bub of the latter, one would be misled into accounting it far and away the more important as compared with the river that makes hardly any noise.

Whimsically it might be imagined that to cause such misleading—or, at all events, to assist to an overrating of its importance—was the very reason for the stream's noisiness. Insistently it would command attention; if only through mere shouting and hullabalooing.

Such a notion would, of course, be absurd as applied to a stream. It is not so absurd applied to people who habitually make themselves conspicuous by loud laughter and loud talking.

Study these noisy folk closely, familiarize yourself with the routine of their lives, and pretty generally you will find that they are people of no particular importance from the point of view of socially productive activity.

Many among them are people who are not socially productive at all, idlers, mere parasites. Others, though engaged in productive activities, are people who apply themselves to these only half-heartedly or so inefficiently as to attain no great degree of success.

More or less clearly aware of their failure to meet life's demands and to contribute, as all should, to the carrying out of life's purposes, more or less clearly aware that this failure puts upon them a stigma of inferiority, they would nevertheless gain for themselves a delusional sense of superiority.

So they resort to the device of noisiness, which naturally has the effect of bringing them to the attention of other people. Seeing themselves stared at, perhaps talked about, they glow inwardly with a self-satisfaction out of all proportion to the means by which it was obtained.

There are, to be sure, exceptions to every rule, and the rule that habitually noisy people are noisy in order to protect themselves from an acknowledgment of failure and insignificance, is a rule that has many exceptions. That it remains a rule, however, will be appreciated by all who delve to any depth in the psychology of the habitually noisy.

And, manifestly, it is particularly important that the meaning of their noisiness be appreciated by the habitually noisy themselves. For then they may be incited, as perhaps never before, to activities redeeming them from the inadequacy that has occasioned their noisiness.
